

CoGDEM

The Council of Gas Detection and Environmental Monitoring

The Council of Gas Detection and Environmental Monitoring (CoGDEM) is a UK trade association formed in 1974 that represents over 35 companies who account for over 80% of the UK's domestic and industrial gas detection, CO gas alarm, emissions analysis and portable environmental monitoring markets.

OUR MISSION

To serve our Membership by safeguarding the standards of and expanding the market for high quality, high specification Gas Detection, Gas Analysis and Environmental Monitoring equipment and services. This will be achieved through:

- Representing on or liaising with Government, Insurance, Standards and Trade Bodies;
- Communicating the benefits of Membership within the Industry and the Members' products and services to specifiers and end users.

OUR MEMBERS ARE:

- Part of an industry responsible for the safe detection and analysis of gas from its production to its consumption;
- Made aware of the activities of continental European gas detection and analysis practices, the influence of EC Directives and the resultant effects on the UK industry;
- Able to receive advance knowledge and analysis of new Standards, Legislation and Technological Advances to enhance and improve your business;
- Capable of influencing the development of any Testing and Certification schemes which become a market requirement;
- Members of an effective forum for mutual understanding and co-operation of the threats and opportunities faced by the industries;
- Benefiting from their listing in the CoGDEM Members Guide, Website, Information and

Publicity activity;

- Able to access free technical advice on all aspects of the gas detection industry, and a 24-hour freephone helpline for your customers;
- Attending four-monthly meetings which often include presentations from experts in associated fields.

OUR OBJECTIVES

- To provide for the efficient organisation and developments of the gas detection, gas analysis and environmental monitoring industry (GD, GA and EM) and to enhance the common commercial interests of Members by:
- continuing to be recognised as the single representative voice serving the UK's GD, GA and EM Industries;
 - understanding and expressing the collective views of Member Companies;
 - creating an environment to enable Member Companies to enlarge their share of the European GD, GA and EM market;
 - assisting in the preparation of acceptable British, European and International Codes and Standards covering product design, commissioning and servicing of equipment and systems and Quality Management Systems;
 - promoting the value of high quality equipment and services to the markets served by its membership;
 - influencing and monitoring the legislative and regulatory framework affecting the Industries in which Members are engaged;
 - upholding and enhancing the professionalism of the Industries and enhancing the reputation of CoGDEM Members in the market place;
 - developing good relations with Government Departments, other Public Bodies, Certification Bodies, Trade Associations at home and abroad;
 - influencing educational and training programmes relating to the scope of CoGDEM activities.
