

SUPPORTING ORGANISATION

NSCA

environmental protection, improvement, innovation

The National Society for Clean Air and Environmental Protection brings together organisations from across the public, private and voluntary sectors to promote a balanced and innovative approach to understanding and solving environmental problems. We are active and influential in the fields of:

- Air quality
- Noise
- Land quality

NSCA is a registered charity with over 100 years' experience in the field of environmental protection. We seek changes in policy and practice to minimise air, noise and land pollution, bringing together stakeholders to inform debates and influence decision-making. We educate and influence policy makers, environmental professionals, industry and the public by:

- Developing policy;
- Running campaigns and raising awareness;
- Providing training and resources;
- Promoting effective enforcement.

With a diverse membership embracing most local authorities and a wide range of business, industrial, consultancy and private sector organisations, as well as private industries, we provide a means for members to keep abreast of, and contribute to developments in policy and good practice. We have regional divisions throughout the UK, a head office in Brighton, East Sussex and an office in Scotland.

POLICY

NSCA is recognised nationally and internationally for its balanced arguments, response to issues, integrity and promotion of public education. Policy formulation is developed as issues arise through the NSCA Committee structure, specialist working groups and training events.

The principal policy committees meet quarterly. They are open to members and invited outside experts. They develop proposals on policy and practice, prepare responses to government consultations, contribute to projects in policy, practice, training and education and generally maintain an overview of legislative, technical, practice and other developments within their area of interest.

PROGRAMME

In addition to the annual meeting and annual conference, the Society's annual programme normally includes some dozen one-day and two-day conferences, seminars and training sessions, geared particularly to staff in local authorities, business and consultancies, and designed to help them stay abreast of key developments in environmental policy and practice.

The extensive publications programme includes, in addition to one-off reports and conference papers, the authoritative annual Pollution Handbook and the monthly Briefing.
